STUDENT & FACULTY VOICES

Listen to our podcast featuring fascinating conversations between students, alumni and professors on real-world applications of this major.

"I like Sociology because your major doesn't define your career. You don't have to go for a vocation, you could go for the education – and that leads to so much more with each level that you do."
- Ajana Orozco, former Sociology student

"I fell in love with the discipline after taking my first Sociology course, which was social inequality with Dr. Michael Perez at CSUF. Majoring in Sociology has changed my life for the better. Education is transformative and my chosen academic journey and career path allows me to share my sociological knowledge with students. That is why I am passionate about teaching Sociology."
-Professor Jean-Pierre Gastillon
