Dear Dr. Scroggins:

On behalf of the National Association of Advisors for the Health Professions, Inc. (NAAHP), we are writing to let you know of the extremely valuable volunteer contributions that Dr. Carmen E. Rexach, Professor of Anatomy, Physiology and Microbiology and Advisor to the Caduceus Club at Mt. San Antonio College, is making to the Association. Carmen was recently appointed as our Liaison to the American Association of Colleges of Osteopathic Medicine. She has served two terms on the NAAHP Board of Directors as the western regional representative and is currently a member of the Community College Advisory Committee.

Carmen has shared that she is interested in and committed to developing the first post baccalaureate program at a community college. With her focus and fortitude, we are hopeful this goal will come to fruition. Carmen is a consummate professional and colleague. Thoughtful, wise and careful, she has demonstrated the fine art of listening and providing insightful feedback – hallmarks of a successful leader.

We are privileged to have Carmen as both a member and contributor. Her investment in the health professions advisement field and the NAAHP, Inc. is a credit to our Association and students she serves. On behalf of the National Association, we thank you and Mt. San Antonio College for encouraging and
