

THE GREAT STAFF RETREAT

Why Great Staff?

The Great Staff Retreat is a staff development opportunity that provides employees with inspiration and professional growth. The Retreat has been adopted by the College because it provides an opportunity to employees for time away from their jobs, with full compensation, to communicate ideas and issues with other employees facing similar job situations.

What is the purpose?

The Great Staff Retreat encourages employees to examine and communicate problems faced in their working environment. Since management is not in attendance, employees are encouraged to develop realistic and usable solutions to discussed issues. The Great Staff Retreat facilitators will not disclose any details of the topics discussed so employees are encouraged to communicate openly and freely, without judgment. The Retreat will be designed to create dialogue on areas identified in a recent survey—employee engagement and motivation, team building, leadership, effective communication, and a better understanding of other job roles.

What will the schedule be?

Each day of the Retreat will have large group sessions to schedule the day's program, small "breakout" session where the real work is done, and small group discussion sessions where ideas will be communicated and solutions created. The days will include relaxation breaks, as well as meal breaks, but each day is full of work activities.

What are the accommodations?

The UCLA Conference Center in Lake Arrowhead is the perfect location. The Center boasts excellent accommodations featuring two-bedroom condolets with separate bathrooms. The Center provides many amenities including great food, snacks, and impeccable service.

Bus transportation will be provided to and from the Center. Participants are expected to stay on grounds during the entire retreat.
