Mt. San Antonio College's Nursing Program was recently ranked tenth among all California community college nursing programs in a survey of the best nursing schools in the Western United States by NurseJournal.org.

With an overall score of 85.63, Mt. SAC also ranked 13th among all Western U. S. community college programs. The rankings were based on program quality, affordability, flexible class schedules, student satisfaction, and value.

A total of 442 universities, two-year colleges, and vocational nursing programs were ranked in the survey.

Mt. SAC's Nursing Program serves 240 students, and its students achieved a 91 percent pass rate on the state board nursing exam in 2014. Associate degree and certificate programs are offered.
