

Message from Van Ton-Quinlivan

December 16, 2018

Please see the message below from Executive Vice Chancellor Van Ton-Quinlivan. She started back at the Chancellor's Office on Wednesday. Welcome back Van!

Since September, I had the opportunity to serve as executive-in-residence at Institute for the Future to explore the future of work and its implications on workforce development and society.

Perhaps the readers might enjoy the insights I gleaned:

- Who Knew That AI Takes Designated Learning Days, posted on Dec. 11, 2018, on Medium
- Workers Disrupted Out of the Economy by Automation Need to be Designed Back In, posted on Dec. 8, 2018, on Medium
- What is the Role of Higher Education in the Gig Economy? posted on Nov. 13, 2018, California Economic Summit blog
- Six Ways Colleges Can Think Differently to Meet the Workforce Needs in America, posted Nov. 8, 2018, on The EvoLLLution
- Why Students Need These Skills to Thrive in the Future of Work, posted Nov. 7, 2018, Medium
- Is Virtual Reality Better Than the Real World for Learning? posted Oct. 13, 2018, on Future Now
- Taking a Step Back to Make a Big Step Forward in the Future of Work, posted Sept. 15, 2018, on Medium

If the CIOs have an interest in future blogs, I will continue to post these on Medium.

Happy holidays,
Van Ton-Quinlivan

Kelly Fowler

*Assistant Superintendent/Vice President of Instruction
California Community Colleges Chief Instructional Officers, President
Accreditation Liaison Officer
3600 M Street, Merced CA 95348
(209) 384-6105 | www.mccd.edu
"Growing our community through education and workforce training..."*