NATIONAL F-1 TRENDS

- National Enrollment Trends: According to IIE there has been a 2.7% decrease in an enrollment of international students in U.S. colleges and universities and 12% decline in new student applications. This marks two years of declines in new enrollments of international students at U.S. colleges and universities.
- The ICE data shows:
 - A 2% year to year decline in the total number of international students from the leading sending country, China, and a 1.2% decline in the number from the second-leading sending country, India.
 - The number from the No. 3 country, S. Korea fell by 7.6%.
 - The number of students from Saudi Arabia continued to fall by 17.1 percent, largely attributable to reductions in the Saudi govt. scholarship program.
- Why the slowdown:
 - Canada, Australia, and the U.K., are recruiting students more aggressively.
 - Visa Delays (China specifically)
 - Tuition increases
 - Reduction in scholarship money
 - Trump's travel ban and negative rhetoric.
 - Political Uncertainty
 - Changes to H1-B visa regulations & OPT
 - Social factor fears
