

Teams & Team Leadership: Team Building, Motivation & Goal Setting

Course Description:

The role of a team leader is a critical one if a team is to reach its full potential for improving quality, productivity, flexibility and innovation. A good team leader has the ability to help a team overcome numerous challenges. Team leadership is not the same as supervision or management. To create and maximize participation and collaboration, a team leader must learn ways to build team identity, commitment and trust, both in the leader and in team members. Team leaders must learn to skillfully manage group discussion, problem solving, and decision making. Team leaders often must know how to shepherd the team through internal conflict.

Key takeaways:

- The Stages of Team Development
- Team decisions making
- Individual roles within the team
- Team Accountability
